DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Goodfellow Tenant House is set a few feet back from U.S. Route 40 facing the road. The ground rises slightly behind the house and the house overlooks the valley of Mill Run and the mountains into Pennsylvania beyond.

The house is a two-story, Ell-plan, gable-roofed dwelling, measuring five bays across the facade. The facade points NE. The side elevations measure two bays wide and the Ell measures one bay by one bay.

The house rests on a low stone foundation and is covered with red brick-patterned asphalt siding. The windows are all one over one sash with plain mitred corners. The central facade door has a three-quarterlength square glass. The roof is covered on the facade (NE elevation) with asphalt shingles and on the other elevations with corrugated metal. The house has two brick interior chimneys: one in the main block SW of center with a corbelled cap, and one near the SW gable end of the Ell.

A one story shed porch runs the length of the facade, wraps around the SE gable end and runs along the SW elevation to the Ell, where the porch is enclosed and turns to run the length of the SE elevation of the Ell. The roof is covered with tar paper and is supported on the NE, SE and SW elevations by square posts. The posts display jigsaw brackets and a balustrade of square posts runs between the porch posts. The enclosed portion of the porch on the SE elevation of the Ell displays three over one sash windows.

To the SW of the main house is a smaller dwelling now used for storage. This is a one and one half story, gable roofed building with a symmetrical three bay facade, pointing NE.

The building rests on a low stone foundation and is covered with brown brick-patterned asphalt siding. The windows are two over two sash with cornices and plain board surrounds. The roof is covered with tar paper. The facade door is sheltered by a one-story gable portico supported by square, chamfered posts with simple capitals. Half-height walls, covered in the same siding as the building, run between the wall and the posts. On the SW elevation, a second door is sheltered by a gable-roofed storm porch. The building has one interior brick stove chimney at the SE gable end.

The interior of the main house exhibits a central stair but is otherwise unknown. The interior of the smaller house is also unknown.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The size of this house and its prominent position on Route 40 suggest that it may have been used as a hotel or boardinghouse at one time. Further research should be done to determine if this is the case.
